English Opinion of American Greatness

The London Daily News has the following:

The people of the United States have done several great deeds within the past five years and have fairly struck their European critics with wonder at events and achievements unparalleled in the annals of the Old World. They have sundered a federation by force of arms and have hammered it together blow upon blow. They have created two Governments each of which was strong enough to command the respect of every foreign power and divide the sympathies of every foreign nation and they have welded and riveted them together like steel in the furnace and the forge into one mighty commonwealth more compact and formidable from the fiery ordeal. Not only have they falsified all the evil prophecies of envy and malice by emerging stronger and more compact out of the civil war than they went into it, but they have taught European Governments a lesson of administrative energy and economy of military organization, of civic devotion which has confounded the croakers and the sneerers on this side of the Atlantic.

But if the vigor and tenacity with which that war was fought out to the bitter end, held the old world breathless with amazement these kinsmen of ours had yet another and much deeper and more lasting surprise in reserve for those who were contemplating their fortunes with curious consternation. It remained to be seen how this fierce democracy, wrought to such an agony and rage of war, would accept the terms of its own victory, lay down its arms, hang up its glorious ensigns and resolve itself once more into a peaceful, law abiding industrious community of citizens; how those leaders and legions of armed men, flushed with triumph, would resign themselves to the obscurity of civil life of the farm, the counting house, the field, the desk, and how a nation made military in its own despite after tasting the glory and the madness of the battle-field would return with unabated zeal to industry and commerce, to the enterprises, the professions, the recreations of peace, and how after spending the accumulated treasures without stint upon a single national venture, it would be content to return to plain clothes and plain duties and set deliberately and zealously about the uninviting task of paying off its debt.

How the people of the United States can go to war, how they can return to peace is now a matter of history. They made war as their kinsmen in the Old World were wont to make it—with a want of preparation at the outset, an indomitable determination through vicissitudes and reverses, and at the end with a completeness and concentration of resources irresistible. They made peace as their kinsmen in the Old World were wont to make it, so that six months after the last shot was fired, all the enthusiasm and energy that had sustained those innumerable armies was quietly absorbed into the enterprise of the cities and the labor of the fields. Only between the old country and the new there was all the difference between a professional and a national army; on the return of peace the armies of the United States became once more the nation, but a nation armed and disciplined in the severest school of self reliance and self respect.

How Not to Do It.—Judge Abell of New Orleans, in his charge of January 9th, sees fit to say:

"The two millions of Northern ballots cast for immediate reconstruction, in the face of a storm of passion and prejudice, fanned and kept alive by the misrepresentation of Northern missionaries, indicates that as soon as passion has exhausted itself and statesmen of enlarged and liberal understanding control the country, a friendly intercourse will be restored between the two sections of our great country. The Convention of 1864 appeared to be blind to everything but the interest of the negro, happy as he then was. I now say to my countrymen who clamor for an equality which can never be realized they will have to look the thirty two millions of white people in the face. Christianity, philanthropy and philosophy demand justice to the colored people, yet stern policy and the claims of civilization forbid the extension of the right of franchise to these people as dangerous to their interest and the public weal, while they remain part of this great republic."

"Let us see about this," says the New York Tribune:

Louisiana had in 1860 a total population of 709 002 persons, whereof 357 456 were white and 350 546 colored. She probably has to-day very near the same number, who may be thus classified: White Copperheads or ex rebels 300 000. White Unionists—Republicans, 50 000. Colored Unionists—Republicans 350 000. Total 400 000.

What Judge Abell proposes is simply that the ex rebel minority of 300 000 Louisianians shall be allowed to do as they will with the 400,000 loyal Unionists—to deny to 350,000 of them all political and civil rights—and to deal with them in the spirit evinced in the New Orleans massacre of July 30th. This he thinks will be conceded whenever "passion has exhausted itself and statesmen of enlarged and liberal understanding control the country." Such is the spirit, such are the assumptions which now impede the restoration of harmony and true peace. Judge Abell and his compatriots saw fit to make an issue of force with the nation, in the trial of which they were utterly beaten. Never was a defeat more signal and utter. Never was a surrender more complete than theirs. And now he accuses a portion of his conquerors of clamoring for an equality which can never be realized, and stigmatizes their admission to a voice in the Government as dangerous to the public weal. Is he pardoned, or only paroled? Even John Morgan when a prisoner did not assume the chief command of the Union armies and insist that Grant should be relieved of a regiment. Judge Abell seems to be laboring under some grave delusion.

Correspondence Concerning Payment for Enlisted Slaves.—The following correspondence concerning the resolution of Cook of Illinois, suspending the operation of the Act authorizing the payment of loyal owners for slaves enlisted into the army will explain itself:

Frankfort (Ky.) Jan 15.—Samuel McKee: Have the Senate delay action on Cook's resolution regarding slaves until you hear from me. The bill will ruin our party here if passed and insure your defeat.
T. C. CAMPBELL.

Washington Jan 16.—T. C. Campbell, Frankfort, Kentucky: Your telegram has come to hand. If our party in Kentucky is ruined by the passage of Cook's resolution, it is best that it should be so. I have been against paying for slaves and expressed myself in the last canvass. I voted for this resolution and am prepared to stand by it. If our party in Kentucky is ruined upon such flimsy principles that it cannot stand non payment for a few negroes, the money for eight out of ten of whom would go into the pockets of rebels, let the party go. I shall wash my hands clean of such an organization and will try to start a new one, which will not be frightened to death every time it hears the word negro mentioned.
SAMUEL McKEE.

New York Indians.—Gov. Fenton, in his annual message says:

The negro population now numbering 41 081 has been gradually diminishing during the last twenty five years while the Indians living upon the reservations have steadily increased without being indebted to emigration for the result. This growth of the aboriginal race is opposed to the theory of their final extinction and their gradual improvement in intelligence and thrift even induces the belief that whenever they shall have conformed to the usages of civilized people in respect to the marriage relation they will be prepared to receive their common lands as individual property and the principal of their annuities. The motives which incite men to acquire wealth and inheritance for their families would operate in them with appropriate effect and they might fitly receive and assume all the privileges and duties of a citizen.

Senator Doolittle Denounced.—The Assembly of the Wisconsin Legislature on the 15th of January, passed resolutions requesting Senator Doolittle to resign. A reference to the Committee on Federal Relations was refused by a two thirds vote and the resolutions were then adopted by a vote of 73 to 21. Every member present of the party to which Senator Doolittle owed his seat voted for them, also Mr Clason, of Milwaukee, "independent" Democrat and formerly one of the publishers of the News. No one had a word to say in the Senator's defense.

The Last Presidential Exhibition

Correspondence of the Springfield (Mass.) Republican.

Washington, January 9.—You cannot keep swine from the mire, nor a modern democrat from keeping bad company. Andy Johnson the acting President of these United States, is a Democrat, and herds with Copperheads and secesh as naturally as any porker wallows in the mire. It is his nature and he can't help following it, that is without more grace than it has been his lot to receive. Wherever there is a chance at dinner, champagne, whisky and political speech-making, there you will find Andy Johnson if he can make any excuse for it. We had a fresh illustration of his propensity last night at the National Hotel dinner. It was a full blown Democratic partisan dinner with Copperheads making up a large majority of those present, and the President of the United States took his seat at the table. Truly he is a man who "cares nothing for dignity." For once he held his tongue, with the exception of offering a toast which contained a hit at Congress as is usual with him. The Blair family were out in force—Clampitt, Mrs Surratt's counsel, and Schade, the counsel for Wirtz, were there and, to give some sort of respectability to the concern, drunken Saulsbury, maudlin Cowan and the solemn Doolittle were present. It was a partisan dinner from beginning to the end and the President unquestionably accepted the invitation to it as such. The politicians here say it indicates that the President has cut loose from all his Republican friends and gone over to his former enemies. This is ridiculous, for he went over a year ago to the Copperheads, and he would this day remove every Republican from office if he did not find the Senate in his way. There is a class of office-holders who deceive him or Congress. They are riding two horses, and must sooner or later come to grief. For my part I wish the Senate would give him a chance at these two faced cowards, for it is a public calamity to continue such men in office. But to the dinner. Blair senior and Blair junior and Jerry Black did the best of the talking. Black trotted out the Supreme Court as if it was a three year old colt which he had bought with his own money. He patronized it in a way that must be soothing to Justice Field and Justice Davis. The dinner is the first step on the part of the President and his Copperhead friends in the great Presidential canvass. It has begun already and will go on till another President is elected. Johnson has no concealments on this head but openly asserts his intention to go into the next Presidential election with the reconstruction issue.

General Grant doesn't propose to be dragged by the coat tails along with the President. He was invited the other day to visit the White House and when he got there found the cabinet in session and the veto message being read. He listened to it in silence and then started for the door. The President intercepted him and sought his opinion upon the subject. The General gave no opinion whatever upon the message or the subject of negro suffrage, yet the President that very day informed a prominent newspaper man (knowing his purpose to telegraph it) that General Grant was present at the reading of the veto message and that he approved it. The General the next day authorized a denial of the statement. He perceives that the President and Seward are trying to use him to render their odious policy less odious in the future than it has been in the past, but they will not succeed.

Electricity.—The San Francisco Times tells the following tale of the tubs or of the cans or batteries:

"Yesterday one of our most prominent city officials, and a most worthy and respectable citizen, was observed by several persons to attempt to go into the office of the fire alarm and police telegraph. He appeared to be enjoying his usual health, but when he placed his hands on the door knob he was seen to suddenly leap into the air, give a slight yell and looked around as if he had been shot or stabbed. Friends gathered about him to render him any assistance he might need when the cause of his strange conduct was discovered. The knob was covered nicely with tin foil and connected with the batteries inside. A wet mat at the door also connected with them, formed the other pole, and when the official stood on that and took hold of the door-knob the circuit was complete, and an electric shock almost strong enough to knock down a mule, was sent through his body. Other persons came up and tried to go in when the strong current held them as powerless as if they had been in the grasp of a giant. It was found that almost every instrument and article in the office had been constituted a pole of the batteries. Friends leaning against the railing or wall, attempting to shake hands, would get a knock as severe and yet as friendly as any ever given at Donnybrook Fair. A gentleman was politely requested to stir the coals in the stove. He took up the poker, stood with one foot on the zinc and thrust the iron in to the fire. Instantly his arm trembled severely, but he took it very coolly and like a philosopher. Before he put the poker down he announced what he believed to be a discovery in electrical science. If he placed the iron in the coal in the stove which was not burning he felt no shock but it came instantly when he put it on the burning coal. The operators think they will prevent the larceny of certain quantities of milk which they have there for their private stomachs by connecting pewter mugs or tin cups and the cans with the batteries. Such an arrangement would be quite as effectual as the kick of a savage cow. Their milk has been taken and their daily newspapers also by persons who do not feel like paying for either, but at present no one knows that he can touch or where he can stand with safety in that office."

A Melancholy Farce.—The New York Evening Post, a "Conservative Republican" journal has the following under this caption:

"President Johnson, who during the war was the object of unceasing scurrility from Northern Copperheads, dined last night in a company containing some of the shining lights of the Copperhead politicians. He was received and welcomed to the dining hall by Tom Florence, who during the war edited the Washington Constitution, a journal which followed faithfully in the path of the New York Daily News. The toast to the Supreme Court was acknowledged by Jeremiah Black of Pennsylvania, Buchanan's Attorney General and confidential adviser, a violent and a furious Copperhead, as everybody knows. The toast to the army and navy called up A. J. Rogers of New Jersey, who omitted to tell the company how much he had done to discourage enlistments during the war. If these men whom Johnson now selects as his dinner table associates had had their way during the war Johnson would never have escaped alive out of Tennessee but the rebellion would have triumphed and the Union would have been destroyed. It seems to us a shameful spectacle to see the President of the United States publicly associating with men whose wishes and efforts were during the war for the success of Jefferson Davis and the destruction of our country."

The Northern Pacific Railroad.—A communication from the Secretary of War transmitting facts and estimates concerning the Northern Pacific Railroad was sent to the Senate, January 4th in response to a resolution. A statement from the Quartermaster General estimated that transportation would be required by the War Department for 15 100 men and 15,000 000 pounds of military stores basing the calculation upon the supply of 15 military posts each manned with 140 foot and 70 mounted men, 10 of them from the eastern terminus and 5 from the western. Estimates of the cost of the road prepared by Brevet Brig. Gen. Simpson which are as follows: For the construction of 204 miles of road $149 488 665; for rolling stock and fixtures at $11 200 per mile $22 593 400; for steamers on the Missouri and Columbia rivers, $3 000 000; for engineering and contingencies $10,000 000; for tunneling beyond the estimated average, per mile $11 078 338. These and other items named, make a total of $306 600 340, or an average per mile of $101 010.

The Department of Agriculture, at Washington is making efforts to collect specimens from every department of nature for the purpose of enlarging the already rare cabinet of curiosities deposited in its Museum. Samples of fine wool from the various breeds of sheep; skins of birds and animals as well as specimens of destructive insects, grain and cereals are particularly solicited.

At Salt Lake City balls are usually opened with prayer.

The Massacre at Phil Kearney

A friend of ours furnishes us with the following particulars of that heart rending affair from a private letter, says the Idaho States:

Fort Phil. Kearney Dakota Ter.
December [illegible] 1866.

* * * I have just returned from Laramie with the mails * * * This fort is in a very precarious situation. Just at present the Indians seem to mean mischief. On or about the 10th of this month they attacked the wood train. I was in advance of the main train with four wagons and ten men to load some logs that had been capsized. On the road we were set upon by about forty Indians. We got our four wagons corralled and fought them nearly an hour, when we were relieved by the cavalry from the fort. Only one of our party was hurt, though over eighty shots were fired at us and many arrows thrown. The cavalry were drawn into a skirmish and lost two men—Lieut Bingham, of the 2d U. S. Cavalry and a sergeant. There were from three to five hundred Indians.

And now for the massacre. I was not there at the time being on the road back from Laramie. I give you the particulars as I get them here. The 19th of December the Indians corralled the wood train long enough to draw the troops from the fort. They would allow the troops to approach within gun-shot, and then retreat. The whole command of ninety four men were thus surrounded and killed. Not one escaped. They were stripped, scalped, and horribly mutilated. Some had powder poured into their ears and burnt. Of some, the hearts were cut out of some—but I spare you the recital. We estimate the number of Indians at from two to four thousand. We do not know how many Indians were killed, but many, I should think, from the pools of blood we found. Some of our men were armed with Spencer rifles, revolver and sabres, and some only muskets. Each man had thirty or forty rounds of ammunition. One citizen went out in the excitement armed with a Henry rifle and two revolvers. He was found half a mile from the rest of our men, with sixty four arrows and one spear in his body. Near him were six dead ponies and fifteen or eighteen pools of blood.

We have stopped the wood trains, sent for reinforcements, and are putting the fort in a condition to stand a seige. * * * * *

We have several pieces of artillery and three hundred rounds of ammunition for each of the guns. * * * * These Indians are the Arapahoes and Sioux. Their chief Red Cloud has a good English education. He is the Indian who met the commissioners at Laramie, with a pipe of peace in one hand and a quiver of arrows in the other, which meant "peace on his own terms or not at all."

How the Democrats Hope to Regain Power.—The New York Times says:

It is evident that the Democratic party grows worse instead of better. During the later stages of the war, in some localities, during the Fall elections, it assumed an air of moderation and even kept its more notorious Copperheads in the background. But the attitude of the President and of the South has inspired them with courage to strive again for power, and as preliminary to the struggle they reaffirm their old Copperhead views and conduct their party drill under the orders of their old Copperhead chiefs.

Their programme, however, embraces one fresh feature. Their hope of regaining power rests upon the restoration of the late rebel States to the full measure of authority as exercised before the war. They propose a National Convention, where Southern rebels shall confer with Northern Democrats as to the course of the Democratic party. They entreat the President to disregard the policy of Congress and if need be to defy its authority. Here the programme points to revolution as a contingency and to physical force as a means of securing the triumph of the President, and the return of the South free from restrictions and conditions.

Divested of disguise this is the Democratic programme: Foment strife between the President and Congress and between the South and Congress, consummate an alliance between the Democracy of the North and the unrepentant element at the South with a view to resist Congressional authority in the next Presidential election if not sooner. In other words judging of the Democratic party by its utterances in Connecticut and Ohio, it seems to undo what the war has done and to place the control of the Government in hands that have been openly or covertly hostile to its authority. It is fortunate that the purposes of the party with which we have to contend admit of being thus clearly understood.

The Logic of the United States Supreme Court.—The New York Herald has the following:

It appears to be generally understood in Washington that the test case in an appeal from United States District Judge Busteed of Alabama as to whether Alabama is or is not a State in the Union, will shortly be decided by the United States Supreme Court in the affirmative and that this decision will upset the theory that Congress from the rebellion and its consequences has the right to reconstruct the late rebel States as Territories. These questions will then recur in the event of such a decision: Has Congress any power over the late rebel States or has not a State the right to rebel against the Union, to go out when it pleases and to stay out as long as it pleases, or to come back when it pleases? Under an affirmative view of the subject and with the prospect of a decision from the court as it stands, substantially pronouncing the war a failure, the first duty devolving upon Congress is a reconstruction of this court.

The Proposed Steamship Line between Boston and Europe.—The enterprise of starting a new line of steamships between Boston and European ports independent of the American steamship line is being pushed forward rapidly. January 7th an adjourned meeting of the capitalists of that city who form this new company [illegible] National Steamship Company was held and the pecuniary arrangements [illegible] funds. According to statements [illegible] company already have pledged to them the cooperation of the railroads in the [illegible] and $200 000 also the promise of the [illegible] Montreal and other ports [illegible] United States mails from Boston [illegible] ment gentlemen of the city in addition to the[illegible] have pledged considerable sums of [illegible] company contemplate purchasing for [illegible] eleven English steamships now lying on the other side of the water. They expect to have the enterprise in operation in a couple of months. [illegible] Smith, of Vermont, is President of the company.

France and Prussia—Important Speech by Count Bismarck

In the Prussian Chamber of Deputies on the 20th of December Count Bismarck made the following important statement of the relations of Prussia and France:

THE TREATIES OF 1815.

The political reorganization of Europe in 1815 was mainly intended to protect the continent from the dangers incidental to a French attack. The adoption of this system was the natural result of the Napoleonic wars in the beginning of this century. While it lasted it gave a certain security to the states included in it, but security was coupled with dependence for some of them, and for none more than Prussia. While forming part of this defensive league, Prussia must be content to hold her own and could not hope to amend the unfortunate position palmed upon her in 1815. For many years the succeeding Cabinets of this country did not think it right to repeal a system under which they all suffered alike and when it fell in 1848 it was not our doing but must be mainly ascribed to the jealous and hostile policy Austria pursued against us. In fact we have been so treated by Austria ever since that it would have been exceedingly difficult for us to regain the confidence we had formerly placed in her.

The Holy Alliance received another blow by Austria taking up a peculiar attitude toward Russia during the Crimean war. The state of things which ensued was supposed to be one exceedingly unfavorable to this Government. Foreign nations were accustomed to look upon us as abandoned to the tender mercies of France and to make the permanent necessity of help under which they fancied we were, their reason for speculating upon our indulgence and modesty. By Austria and a portion of our German allies this speculation has been carried very far in the last ten years. But were they all right in their fancies?

NOTHING TO BE GAINED BY WAR WITH FRANCE.

War with France is not in the interest of this country. We have little to gain even by beating her. The Emperor Napoleon himself, differing in this from the accepted policies of other French dynasties, wisely recognizes the fact that peace and mutual confidence should prevail between the two neighboring nations.—But to maintain such relations with France a strong and independent Prussia is alone competent. If this truth is not admitted by all subjects of Napoleon III, it is a consolation to know that his Cabinet, at least, thinks differently, and that we—officially at any rate—have to deal with his Cabinet only. Looking upon this vast country of Germany from the French point of view, his Cabinet cannot but tell themselves that to combine it again with Austria into one political whole and make it a realm of seventy five million inhabitants would be contrary to the French interests. Even if France could make the Rhine her boundary she would be no match for so formidable a Power, were it ever established beside her.

To France it is an advantage that Austria does not participate any longer in our common Germanic institutions, and that a State whose interests conflict with her own in Italy and in the East cannot henceforth constitutionally rely upon our armed assistance in war. It is natural for France to prefer a neighbor of less overwhelming might, a neighbor, in fact, whom 30,000,000 or 35 000 000 of French are quite strong enough to ward off from their boundary line in defensive war. If France justly appreciates her interests, she will as little allow the power of Prussia as that of Austria to be swept away. The present dynasty of France, having identified itself with the principle of nationality, always looked upon the question of the Duchies in a temperate way, and from the very outset was less adverse to our claims than any of the other Powers. You are aware that to carry the principle through on the Dano-German frontier is simply impossible. Germans and Danes so intermingle there that no line of demarcation can be drawn which will separate all members of the one race from those of the other.

Yet France wishing to see her adopted principle acknowledged in that particular instance, as in so many preceding ones, mooted the question, repeatedly bringing on a discussion between us, Denmark and other Powers. We never took the initiative in a matter which was so distasteful to us. I was, however, always of opinion that people who have no wish to be Prussians and who cannot be expected to alter their ideas on this head—people who moreover, declare to be nationally connected with a neighboring race, do not add to the power of the State from which they wish to separate. There may be imperative reasons of a geographical, ethnographical or military nature for not listening to their petitions. I will not inquire now how far this applies to the matter in hand. The question was an open one till the war and is so even now."

FRANCE ITALY AND PRUSSIA.

In July last France was enabled, by the general situation of Europe, to urge her views more forcibly than before. I need not depict the situation of this country at the time I am speaking of. You all know what I mean. Nobody could expect us to carry on two wars at the same time. Peace with Austria had not been concluded, were we to imperil the fruits of our glorious campaign by plunging headlong into hostilities with a new, a second enemy? France then being called on by Austria to mediate between the contending parties, as a matter of course did not omit to urge certain wishes of her own upon us. We had to determine not whether we thought the terms offered compatible with the expressed desires of the Schleswig Holsteiners, but whether we were to accept or reject in a body the overtures of Austria imparted through France. Long negotiations were impracticable under the circumstances. Our communications were interrupted; telegrams took three or even six days to travel from our headquarters to Berlin. In this condition his Majesty determined to accept the programme submitted to his decision. It is true we were strongly backed by Italy remaining true to her engagements and standing by us with a fidelity which I cannot too highly appreciate and extol.

The Italian Government resisted the temptation thrown in its way—a present from Austria of renouncing its alliance with us and suspending military operations against the common enemy. This is a fact which I hope guarantees the continuance of friendly relations between Italy and Germany. But, notwithstanding the valuable aid rendered us by our Italian allies, both on the battlefield and in our diplomatic negotiations with France, we did not think ourselves justified in proceeding to extremities, and involving all Europe in war merely because a single item of the terms proffered was unpalatable. Had we insisted upon having everything our own way the most serious complications might have arisen. I thought it my duty to advise his Majesty to sanction the terms submitted as they stood rather than jeopardize our previous successes and gamble for more.

Diary of Wilkes Booth.—A Washington dispatch of the 16th January says:

The diary of Wilkes Booth taken from his body after his capture is now in possession of the proper Investigating Committee, having been handed over to it by the authorities. For some reason its contents were not used on the trial. It shows that he was an agent of the Confederate Government and received money from it, and that at one time at least the plan was to kidnap Lincoln. It is believed to implicate only Booth and Harrold in the assassination. An entry made on Friday the 21st of April one week after the murder shows that it must have been written in a perfect agony of mind. It discloses his position with a broken leg in the midst of a swamp, alone, an outcast, an assassin weighed down by his guilt and a feeling that God would refuse him forgiveness. It is altogether such a cry of human agony as seldom finds expression in words.

The question having arisen as to whether American merchandise going coastwise, wrecked on the Florida coast and there sold, would be liable to duty on being returned to the United States, the Secretary of the Treasury has decided that American goods wrecked and sold as above, and returned to the United States in the same condition as when exported are entitled to free entry, upon satisfactory proof of the fact being adduced.

The Oregon Herald says: "The rule of that party (Republican) has been the jubilee of thieves."

Yes, the party has liberated a great many slaveholders, called men stealers in a certain old fashioned book, but they do not seem to be thankful for it.—S. F. Times.

TUESDAY MORNING FEBRUARY 19 1867

In his attempt to found a new party based on the licentious principles of French republicanism there was nothing which Jefferson dreaded so much as the opposite influence of Washington. The popularity of Washington was so great that Jefferson could not hope to oppose him openly and we have already seen how he disseminated in secret among his adherents misrepresentations of Washington's principles and the measures of his Administration. Jefferson's correspondence with his partisan supporters teems with loud complaints against the popularity of Washington and the extent of his influence with the people in favor of the Federal party and against the rising organization of which he himself was the acknowledged head. Some further quotations which we shall make from this correspondence, will serve to show the relative positions occupied by Washington and Jefferson, and will utterly refute the statement so often made now a days by Democratic writers, to the effect that Washington "was never identified with any political party," and that he and Jefferson did not stand opposed to each other.

The truth is, they were diametrically opposed to each other from the time the formation of the Democratic party began. In July, 1796 Jefferson wrote to Monroe in regard to Jay's treaty "Though the Anglomen have got their treaty through, it has been to them a dear bought victory. They see that nothing can support them but the colossus of the President's merits with the people." Here Washington is represented as the main support of the "anti Democratic" party. There is more truth in this than in most of Jefferson's statements, for the death of Washington a few years afterwards, was an irreparable loss to the National party.

In February, 1797, Jefferson wrote to James Sullivan "All the forms in which the public disposition has been pronounced in the last half dozen years, when traced to their true source, have only been evidences of the preponderant popularity of a particular great character. That influence once withdrawn, and our countrymen left to their own unbiassed good sense, I have no doubt we shall see a pretty rapid return of general harmony and our citizens moving in the phalanx of regular liberty." Observe the meaning of this passage. The popularity of Washington is represented as having drawn his countrymen away from their duty; of having deprived them of their "unbiassed good sense," of having produced public disorder, and of having caused the obstruction of "regular liberty." And that pernicious influence "once withdrawn," it was the opinion of Jefferson that "general harmony" would prevail!

On the 17th of June, 1797, Jefferson wrote to his "esteemed friend" Aaron Burr, slandering Washington in a similar manner, and still deprecating Washington's well-earned popularity and meritorious influence with the people: "I always hoped that the popularity of the late President being once withdrawn from active effect, the natural feelings of the people toward liberty, would restore the equilibrium between the executive and legislative departments, which had been destroyed by the superior weight of that popularity, and that their feelings of moral obligation would discountenance the ungrateful predilection of the executive in favor of Great Britain." Here, Jefferson has disclosed his real sentiments towards Washington to his confidential friend and fellow partisan, Burr. What a tirade of abuse against the father of his country! And what a precious pair of Democratic worthies to be thus engaged in heaping obloquy upon the great Washington!

It will be observed that in this extract Washington is declared to have drawn the feelings of the people away from liberty, to have destroyed the "equilibrium between the executive and legislative departments" of the Government, and to have exhibited an "ungrateful predilection for Great Britain!" And the author of these slanders piously hoped that "Washington's popularity once withdrawn from active effect," the "natural feelings of the people toward liberty" would correct these abuses, which in another passage in the same letter to Burr, were said to have "marked the former administration."

If the question as to whether Burr was a Democrat in good standing, ever had been in doubt, it would be settled by this letter, written to him by Jefferson. To have been engaged with Jefferson in calumniating Washington, would incontestably prove him a Democrat in high standing with his party.

To get rid of Washington's influence was therefore the great object with Jefferson. To accomplish this he secretly disseminated these and kindred slanders, and never ceased his work of detraction till Washington was dead, when he suddenly changed his plan and began to make use of Washington's fame to promote his own selfish ends.

If there is any one who really believes that Washington was not identified with any party, and that he did not oppose the doctrines of Jefferson, let such person take Jefferson's own testimony on the subject. On the 4th of February, 1818, he wrote "The opposition of the Republicans to the British treaty, and the zealous support of the Federalists in that measure, had made Gen. Washington all their own. Understanding that I disapproved of that treaty, he had become alienated from myself personally, as from the Republican party, generally, of his fellow citizens." Perhaps this decisive statement may convince "Jeffersonian Democrats" that there was, after all, some political and personal differences between the father of his country and the father of their party.

Washington was the head of the Federal party. The Democrats of the present day raise a cry against the Federalists, as if the very name were a badge of dishonor. The "anti Democratic" party of the present day is asserted to be the lineal descendant of the old Federal organization. We guess we can survive the dishonor of belonging to a party which was once headed by Washington, and which, it is confessed, has not departed from the principles it held in Washington's time.

FOREIGN IMMIGRATION.—Tables have lately been published, showing the increase of the population of the United States during the year 1866, by foreign immigration. The aggregate increase is 233,418. Of these, 215,928 are from Germany and the British Isles—104,716 being Germans, 68,047 Irish, 36,184 English, 4,979 Scotch—representing, at a moderate average, an actual accession of wealth to the country of $107,964,000. With the continuance of domestic tranquility the tide of immigration from these parts is certain to become larger. Considering, says the N Y Herald, the troubled aspect which things are assuming in Europe, and the excitement which is inseparable from the reform and Fenian movements in Great Britain, we are warranted to infer that the number of immigrants during the year on which we have entered will be unusually large. Inquiries made on the subject convince us that the bulk of these immigrants go westward—large numbers settling particularly in Minnesota and Wisconsin.

DIFFERENCE OF OPINION.—The Herald denounces the "Abolition Historics" because they "assume that the Whisky Insurrection in Pennsylvania was a party measure, incited by the 'Democratic Societies.'"

The editor who makes this complaint merely raises an issue of veracity between himself and Gen Washington. On the 26th of August 1793, Washington said in a letter to Gen Henry Lee of Virginia "I consider this insurrection (in Pennsylvania) the first formidable fruit of the Democratic societies." Perhaps these "Abolition Histories" may not be so far wrong after all.

On motion of Sherman of Ohio the title of the bill was amended so as to read "An act for the more efficient government of the rebel States."

Washington News

WASHINGTON Feb 17.—Sherman's substitute for the Stevens bill as passed by the Senate declares that whereas no legal State governments or adequate protection for life or property exists in the rebel States therefore it is necessary that peace and good order should be enforced until loyal and republican governments shall be legally established. The first section creates five military districts as in the original second section of the Stevens bill. The President shall assign to each district a Brigadier General with adequate military force. The second section makes it the duty of such officers to protect all persons in their rights to suppress insurrection disorder and violence and to punish disturbers of the peace. He may allow local civil tribunals or commissioners to try and punish offenders but all interference by any so called State authorities is declared null and void. Section four requires trial without delay and provides that no cruel and unusual punishment shall be inflicted and that no sentence affecting life or liberty shall be executed until approved by the district commander. Section five—the Blaine amendment—so called provides that when the people have framed a constitution which has been ratified by the people without regard to race or color, except those disfranchised for rebellion, and when the constitutions shall have been approved by Congress and the Legislature elected under it shall have ratified the Constitutional Amendment and when said amendment shall have been declared a part of the Constitution of the United States, then the said State shall be entitled to representation by members who can take the test oath. Section six is the Doolittle amendment requiring the sentence of death to be approved by the President before execution.

CHICAGO Feb 17.—The Senate is still sitting at midnight with a determination to remain through, if it be necessary to pass the reconstruction bill which was reported by the committee yesterday, embracing the leading provisions of the House Military bill with the Blaine amendment, that when any State has framed a Constitution acceptable to Congress, established impartial suffrage and has ratified the pending Constitutional Amendment such State shall be entitled to representation. It is said by Trumbull and others that the President will sign the bill. Saulsbury of Del, Davis of Ky, Cowan of Penn, McDougal of Cala occupied the Senate last evening, the session continuing till midnight, at which hour the above compromise had not been introduced. Washington special dispatches say the compromise conferences with the President was brought about by mediators not holding official positions. At their urgent request, an informal meeting of twenty or thirty members was held and a committee appointed to see the President who expressed his willingness to urge the ratification of the Constitutional Amendment and impartial suffrage, which answer was communicated to sixty or seventy Republican members. Banks of Mass, Blaine of Me, Bingham of Ohio, Dodge of N Y, Delano of Ohio, Hubbell of West Va, have been prominent in these negotiations.

The River and Harbor appropriation bill passed the House yesterday. It appropriates five million dollars including twenty five thousand for examination and survey of [illegible] on the Pacific coast.

NEW YORK, Feb 18.—Washington specials report that the President has promised to accept the Military bill with Blaine's amendment. The bill which passed the Senate will go back to the House by the Ways and Means Committee.

The Committee will also be compelled by the instructions of the House to report the anti-contraction bill, but will probably recommend its rejection.

The Ways and Means Committee will report the tariff bill to-day.

Rumors are again current about cabinet changes to the effect that Randall will go out and Horace Greeley come in. The opinion is strengthening that the whole thing is a Johnson [illegible] to secure delay about any reconstruction measures.

There is not the slightest probability that Collector Smythe of New York, will resign.

WASHINGTON Feb 18.—A caucus of Republican members of the House will be held this morning to consider whether to accept the military reconstruction bill as it passed the Senate. If not passed before Wednesday the President may pocket it and thus dodge the late private negotiations for compromise. Mr Doolittle's speech against the bill in the Senate on Saturday night, and his offering an amendment that no sentence of death should be subject to the approval of the President, is taken as an indication that he repudiates it and washes his hands of the whole affair.

The Sherman substitute was drawn by a committee consisting of Fessenden, Trumbull, Sumner, Sherman, Harris, and Frelinghuysen. No difference is noticed from the House bill except by the 5th section, the President appoints military commanders, and the provision prohibiting the U S Judges from issuing writs of habeas corpus is stricken out. Probably the House will accept it as the best that can now be got. Elliot's bill stops in the Senate.

"What act of a Democratic State Government ever infringed any of the delegated powers of the General Government, or impaired its constitutional vigor?"—Herald.

In 1860-'61, eleven States passed ordinances of secession. These states were Democratic, every one. Their Governors were Democratic, their Legislatures Democratic, and a majority of their people Democratic. The action of the Democratic State Governments in assuming to withdraw from the Union, is generally supposed to have "infringed the powers of the General Government" in a very considerable degree. It did not greatly "impair the vigor" of the Government however, but rather stimulated it, as the Democratic rebels afterwards found to their bitter sorrow. The same paper asks:

When did the Democratic party ever appeal from the decision of the majority of the people to armed mobs?

In 1861, when the Southern and dominant wing of that party refused to submit to the decision of the constitutional majority of the people. The rebellion was an "appeal" from this decision to "an armed mob." These words describe it exactly.

THE PUBLIC DEBT.—Statements made in Eastern journals show that on the first of January, 1867, the debt of the United States was $2,6[illegible]062,506 43. The coin in the Treasury at that date amounted to $97,841,557 75, and the currency to $33,896,750 04. These sums deducted from the debt as stated above shows the actual indebtedness to be $2,543,325,172 64. During the year ending on the 1st of December the debt was reduced $173,406,361, or at the rate of $471,935 per day. The debt reached its maximum in the schedule of August 31st, 1865, when the total stood at $2,757,781,190, showing a deduction since that period of $214,456,018.

SUCCESSFUL BURGLARY—STOWELL, CHAMBERLAIN & CO'S SAFE BLOWN OPEN AND ROBBED.—Our town was startled on Friday morning by the discovery of a great burglary in the Banking Office of Messrs Stowell Chamberlain & Co. The safe was a double one made by Lewis Lillie & son of the largest size, weighing many thousand pounds. The burglars obtained an entrance into the office by prying open one of the windows with a jimmy. In the lower left hand corner of the right hand outer door of the safe which was two inches thick, a hole was drilled through which powder was introduced. It was blown open separating the outside from the bolts and inside and rendering it a complete wreck. The lower hinges of both doors were broken off. They next attacked the inside safe which was two feet high extending the width and depth of the inside of the main safe. This safe was one and a half inches thick with folding doors. They drilled and [illegible] to the right and left [illegible] the same point they had on the outside, blowing open both doors. This gave them access to the money and bonds amounting to twenty five thousand dollars, which they carried off. The larger portion of this belonged to special depositors. They also took valuable papers belonging to the firm, leaving in their flight a bag of gold and silver, also a hundred dollar bill. This safe was made to order by Mr Lillie, of chilled iron and was supposed to be burglar proof, as it was a double safe, one inside the other with Lillie's combination locks on the outside and inside doors. No trace of the burglars has been discovered. They came well prepared with jimmies, drills, gunpowder &c. The clerk of the bank did not leave there until twelve o'clock at night. The explosion was heard about four in the morning showing they were expeditious in their work.

Further Particulars of the Stabbing Affair.—The man John Thomas who stabbed Samuel Wilson, Saturday night, is represented as partially insane. Some time before meeting with Wilson, he had stated that he was bound to have a row before he went to bed, and said something about wanting to be hung. Meeting Wilson on Front street he asked him if he had a knife. Upon being answered affirmatively, he wanted to borrow it. Wilson handed him his knife, when Thomas opened it and immediately plunged it into Wilson's breast between the fifth and sixth ribs. Thomas then ran off down Front street and threw the knife into a narrow passage between two houses, where it has since been found, clotted with blood and identified as Wilson's knife. Thomas had been drinking; Wilson was sober. The latter upon being cut started to go home, but seems to have become bewildered and instead of going up Front street to his home, he got upon Madison and went up to near the corner of Third, where he was found two or three hours later by some passers-by. These latter, at first supposed him to be some intoxicated person and passed him without replying to his appeal for help. After getting by him, they heard him say "for God's sake, come here and help me." Upon returning to him they found him bleeding badly and his clothing to his belt, saturated with blood. They got him home and summoned a physician who found him exhausted and almost as cold as a dead man, from the loss of blood. We understand he is, however, getting along as well as could be expected.

Circuit Court—Shattuck Judge.—The proceedings in this Court yesterday, the 18th, were as follows:

William Stevens vs. John Foster; jury returned a verdict of $134, for plaintiff, for use and occupation of lands.

State of Oregon vs. Edward Testy; indicted for larceny of a sheep-skin mat from the store of Walter Bros; jury trial, verdict of jury, "Not Guilty;" defendant discharged.

State of Oregon vs. Ah Hong; indicted for murder of Ah Foy, June 12th, 1866; defendant pleaded guilty of wilfully and maliciously killing Ah Foy, but not of premeditation. This case having been tried at the last term, the Court, considering the testimony given heretofore and the statements of defendant now made, found that defendant was guilty of committing the crime of murder in the second degree and therefore sentenced him to hard labor in the penitentiary for the period of his natural life.

The Grand Jury presented two indictments.

State of Oregon vs. Louis Castle, jury trial; verdict, guilty of larceny as charged in the indictment, except as to larceny from a store; value of goods stolen, assessed at $48 75.

State of Oregon vs. Julian Ladrow and Andrew Simmons, indictment presented; C. B. and J. F. McCoy appointed by the Court as counsel for defendants.

Disgraceful Proceedings.—We have a letter from St. Helens stating that during the night of the 16th, the house of Capt. R. G. Adams, which he recently erected on a homestead land claim near that village, was blown up by exploding under it a keg of powder, placed there and fired by some person or persons who are determined to drive Adams from the claim. We have the story of the troubles connected with the matter, from a reliable and disinterested party, in brief as follows: The land claim, about which the dispute exists, was one formerly owned by a Mr. Trutch who, a long time since, abandoned it, and since then, till about seven months ago, it had laid unclaimed by anybody. At the period referred to, Mr. Peachar, of St. Helens, notified on the claim, but has all the time lived in the village of St. Helens, and neither he nor any one else has lived on the claim since its abandonment by Trutch, till Adams took it. Immediately upon Adams making the claim, he was warned off and threatened by friends of Peachor with forcible ejectment in case he did not observe the warning. Adams has thus far remained on the claim and hence the disgraceful proceedings of the night of the 16th. Our informant says, "the persons who committed the crime of last night will be arrested and tried."

Reduction in Telegraph Rates.—The Alta California of the 12th, says: "By reference to an advertisement in the Alta to-day, it will be seen that the Telegraph Company have made two very important changes in regard to telegrams between California and the Atlantic States. Hitherto messages sent from this Coast were always required to be prepaid, and it often occurred that messages were received from persons in the East, requiring an answer from the recipient of the message, and although the message was of no interest, yet the message had to be prepaid or not sent. This cause of complaint has now been removed by the rule just adopted and advertised, which allows messages to be collected at either end of the line, always considering the parties sending and receiving as responsible. This will be a source of convenience and much satisfaction. The rate for messages going East has been nearly eight dollars in gold, while messages from the East were charged the same rate in the currency of the country. This has worked to the disadvantage of California messages overland, and been a source of annoyance. The rate hereafter for messages of ten words will be $5, in gold, and a like proportion for additional words, which is a reduction of about 25 per cent. from the former charges."

Cattle Running at Large.—There is a city ordinance against cattle and horses running at large in the city after a certain hour in the evening and till a certain hour in the morning, but there is nothing, of which we are aware, to prevent such animals from running at large during the day time. So far as the nuisance is concerned it is quite as great in the day time as after night, and in some respects greater. Cattle and horses soon learn to attack every wagon left standing in the streets, in quest of food. A farmer who brings in a load of produce has got to stand guard over his wagon to keep away predatory cattle; and where such precaution is not attended to, loss of portions of the load is very liable to occur. Besides this nuisance, it is almost impossible to protect young shade trees from being cropped or broken down and ruined. Cattle rub against the enclosing frames, break them down and spoil the trees. In many instances, brought within our knowledge, fences have proved of little avail to protect shrubs and trees growing near the edge of an enclosure. We hear it frequently suggested that certain portions, if not all of the corporate limits, should be relieved of this nuisance, by ordinance.

The Columbia vs. the Chico Route.—The logic of facts is inexorable and one dose of it is better in the way of producing conviction, than all the "blowing" that the universe has room for. The Chico route was "blowed" into the position of a rival route to the Columbia river, and in its turn has been blowed out again by a little of the aforesaid logic. On the 11th day of October, four months ago, a lot of goods was shipped from San Francisco to go by way of Red Bluffs and the Chico route to Idaho. They got as far as Red Bluffs, where they stopped. "Blowing" couldn't move them a step further. On the 4th day of December, it being impossible to get the goods on by way of Chico, they were reshipped to San Francisco, whence, after some delay, they were started for Idaho by way of the Columbia river route. They arrived here by the Ajax and will immediately go forward to their destination via Umatilla. Had they been shipped this way, in the first instance, the goods would have been in Idaho some three months ago. Good-bye, Chico; thy glory has departed.

Department Staff.—By an order from the Headquarters of the Department of the Columbia, the Department staff is announced as follows: 1, Major General Frederick Steele, commanding Department—office, No. 28, Front st., Portland. 2, Richard P. Strong, 1st Lieut., 7th Infantry, Aid-de-Camp and A. A. A. G. 3, George Williams, Bt. Capt. U. S. A., Aid-de-Camp. 4, E. B. Babbitt, Col. U. S. A., A. Q. M., Chief Quartermaster—office, No. 24, Front street, Portland. 5, Henry C. Hodges, Capt. A. Q. M., Bt. Lieut. Col. U. S. A., Depot Quartermaster—office, Fort Vancouver. 6, P. G. S. Ten Broeck, Surgeon U. S. A., Bt. Lieut. Col., Medical Director—office, Fort Vancouver. 7, Sam. A. Foster, Capt. C. S., Bt. Major U. S. A., Chief C. S.—office, Fort Vancouver. 8, L. S. [illegible], 1st Lieut. Ordnance, Bt. Capt. U. S. A., Chief Ordnance officer—office, Fort Vancouver. 9, George Macomber, 2d Lieut. 32d Infantry, Acting A. I. G.—office, No. 24, Front street, Portland.

Progress. We, yesterday, noticed posters around town, announcing that the 22d—the anniversary of the birth of the father of his country—will be celebrated in Portland by a grand cock fight and badger baiting. The posters represent the proposed amusement as a piece of "rare sport," and say the "sport" will begin at eight o'clock P. M. So, our people are at last to have an opportunity of witnessing one of the highly interesting, elevating and strictly moral entertainments which have always served to keep the Mexican people and the Five Pointers of New York in the van of enlightened and Christian civilization. The tone of polished society is about to take an octave step towards the acme of refinement. Who shall say that Portland is not making progress?

Recorder's Court.—In the Recorder's Court, Feb. 18th.—Chase, arrested and charged with assaulting a boy; complaint withdrawn upon payment of costs by defendant.

J. P. Whiting, charged with an attempt to commit a larceny in a hotel. The Court finding that a larceny had been committed, held the defendant to answer in the Circuit Court.

John Thomas, charged with an assault with intent to kill Sam'l Wilson; continued till this morning.

There is a complaint lodged against Ah Fook, for an assault upon another Chinaman with a deadly weapon. Will be heard this morning.

Lecture before the Law Association.—We are authorized—and it affords us pleasure—to state that the Rt. Rev. Bishop Scott will lecture before the Young Men's Law Association, at the Circuit Court rooms, this (Tuesday) evening, at seven o'clock P. M. The subject is a fine one—"Mental Philosophy as related to the Science of Government"—and will of course be ably handled. The public, ladies as well as gentlemen, are invited to be present.

Willamette Freights.—Arrived per Alert, Feb. 18th: 120 boxes produce, 64 hlf. bbls dried apples and butter, 20 bbls butter, 252 boxes apples, 1,702 qr sks flour, 47 sks bacon, 6 boxes butter, 3 kegs, 1 bdle furs, 7 rolls leather, 1 letter press, 1 sk socks, 91 cans lard, 1 lot castings and scrap iron, 1 coop turkeys, 2 trunks, 2 pkges slats, 6 cases goods, 31 pkges mdse.

Salute.—Gen. Steele visited the Revenue Cutter Lincoln yesterday, on which occasion the customary salute was fired from the Cutter's guns. This accounts for the firing which so many persons were unable to understand.

Better late than never.—We omitted yesterday to acknowledge the receipt of a liberal bundle of papers from Barrett. Never mind, Barrett, we'll acknowledge 'em, if it takes a month.

Freight per "Fideliter."—The Fideliter sailed Sunday morning with about forty-five tons of flour, and fifteen tons of country produce, assorted.

From McCormick's we have a file of the latest Eastern newspapers and pictorials, and also Harper's Magazine for February.

Treasure.—The steamer from the Cascades, yesterday, brought down for Wells, Fargo & Co. about $40,000 in treasure.

Sociable.—The ladies of the First Presbyterian Church will have a sociable on Wednesday evening, the 20th.

The Tanner Troupe.—This troupe played well last evening to a good house. They give another performance to-night with an equally good bill, in which Miss Soledad, Sprague, O'Niel, Graham, and the whole strength of the troupe will appear. Go and see them.

Freight from Below.—The steamer Ranger arrived last evening from Monticello with 13 passengers and the following freight: 7 head beef cattle, 5 calves 67 head sheep, 16 tons hay, 45 sacks onions, 10 gunnies onions, 3 horses, 18,000 shingles and 300 feet lumber.

The Long-Promised Day has Come.—Barman Bros., the celebrated clothing dealers, have commenced invoicing their stock, &c., corner of Morrison and Front, formerly known as the City of Paris Store, where their stock will be open for inspection on Wednesday evening next. They have also made arrangements to continue their business at their old stand, where they have engaged the services of Mr. A. Bachman, formerly with S. Ackerman of Oregon City.

Mothers, Mothers, Mothers.—Don't fail to procure Mrs. Winslow's Soothing Syrup for all diseases incident to the period of teething in children. It relieves the child from pain, cures wind colic, regulates the bowels, and by giving relief and health to the child, gives rest to the mother. Thirty-five cents a bottle. Consumptives should never give up and think there is no hope until you have tried Allen's Lung Balsam. It has cured many cases that physicians pronounced incurable. Sold by the dealers in family medicine generally. f18d1m

Perry Davis' Pain Killer is really a valuable medicament, and unlike most of the patented articles of the day, is used by many physicians. It is particularly desirable in locations where physicians are not near, and in families will often save the necessity of sending out at midnight for a doctor. A bottle should be kept in every house.—Boston Traveler. fel8d&wlm

G. VENARD,
CHARTRES COFFEE!
Manufactory Established in June, 1851.
STEAM POWER, NOS. 625 AND 627 FRONT ST.

HAS CONSTANTLY ON HAND GROUND AND ROASTED COFFEE, GREEN COFFEE of the best qualities, CREAM OF TARTAR and SPICES of all sorts.

The undersigned, who has always enjoyed public confidence for the excellent quality of his Coffee, neglects nothing to justify the good name acquired by his productions, the sale of which daily increases. The acknowledged superiority of his merchandise, which commands here, and in the markets of the interior, a relatively higher price, excites the cupidity of some manufacturers, and every day he sees increasing the number of those who, by counterfeit or imitation of his mark, seek to deceive the public, palming upon them their inferior production for the genuine G. VENARD CHARTRES COFFEE. This fraud can deceive nobody after a trial, but only adds to the favorable opinion of the consumers, the very flattering, though unwilling testimony of the counterfeiters. Nevertheless, buyers should be forewarned, and placed on their guard against this practice.

The Great Tragedy in Crete—A Battle to the Death—Several Thousand Killed and Mutilated

CRETE December 3 1866

News of the tragedy of Arkadi will have long ere this reaches you startled the world into recollections of Missolonghi and 1830 and may perhaps, have worked conviction in the minds of European statesmen that the Cretans are in terrible earnest, but to us, almost within sound of the explosion which consummated the affair, and conscious of the barbarities and despair which gave such awful significance to the Cretan cry of "Liberty or death," it has come with a shock like an earthquake

For a week after the fight we heard confused and contrary rumors of it of mines and desperate fighting We saw the steamer come in to bring to the Canea hospitals the wounded who no longer found places at Retimo but we could get no reliable news of the nature and result of the conflict Finally we got sufficient details to know in its full meaning if not its full amount of woe, the saddest most piteous episode of this struggle

Arkadi is a monastery which dates its foundation eight hundred years ago, the present building having been built by the Venetians nearly three centuries since, and so strong that it was impregnable during the previous wars of Venetian and Turk, and Turk and Christian, even through the Greek war of independence It is situated in the midst of a beautiful plain, at the foot of the slope of Mount Ida, to the villages in which some half a dozen in number, it furnishes protection in danger, and assistance in want It was distinguished among Cretan monasteries for the extent of its charities and beneficence

It was at times the headquarters of the Cretan committee, and of the volunteers under Coroneos, and in accordance with the policy of the day, its destruction was determined on, and that of Coroneos and his little army, it was hoped at the same time. Mustapha Pasha set out from Retimo, only a few hours' march from Arkadi, the 18th of November, and arriving at night entered the monastery unperceived There were in it only the priests and the families of the villages in number 540 souls, of whom 343 were women and children. Some attempted to escape, but finding retreat cut off, returned to the convent, preferring to share the danger of defeat rather than be taken prisoners.

The forces of the Pasha were about 12,000 men, to meet whose attacks the Christians had less than 400, priests and fathers of the families mostly. They declined to surrender, and finding that any attempt at escalade or surprise was useless, the Pasha sent to Retimo for artillery, which was sent him, the next day he sent for reinforcements and more guns, so that at the last he had twenty six guns and two mortars, minus three guns bursted, and 16,000 men.

The convent being cut off from communication with the mountains, no news could be sent to Coroneos, who was absent on an expedition, and there was no hope of relief from such an overwhelming number if he had come Three days the two hundred heroes fought the battle of despair, firing from window and loop-hole so energetically and obstinately that the Turks speak of it as like a European battle, the like of which never was seen in Crete. The third day a breach was effected at the great portal and an assault made, the Armenians and Cretan and Musselmans in advance. The gate opens within a large court, around which are arranged the cells and rooms of the monastic establishment, and to these the Christians withdrew when the troops had effected an entrance, and kept up the fire from the doors and windows on the enemy, who were pushed in increasing masses

At this time some participants say that a small mine or magazine exploded, killing about one hundred and fifty of the troops, who recoiled and left the place in a panic, but were ordered in again and the fight in the court was kept up six hours, they say, from the time the breach was entered The ground of the court was covered with the Turkish dead and wounded, but the Christians too, wasted away, and finally seeing all to be lost, and longer resistance impossible, some of the combatants embraced in farewell and stabbed each other; the Hegumenos, Gabriel, fighting to the last moment, blew out his own brains when he found the Turks were about to take him The rest, retreating to the great tower of the Hegumenos, where were most of the women and children, and under which was the powder magazine determined to perish together rather than submit to the brutalities and outrages of the Turks, and fired the magazine, all being destroyed with all the troops in the vicinity. In a distant room where thirty nine sick and wounded men and sixty-one women and children, who escaped the explosion. One priest of a neighboring convent who had surrendered to the Pasha and received protection from him was murdered by the Egyptians —incarnate fiends, who spare nothing that is Christian

The survivors, except six, who were shot down in cold blood, because they had European costumes on, were, by a mercy without parallel in the whole war, made prisoners, and led, with insults and abuse, to Retimo, where many of them arrived half dead, the stronger carrying the children, of whom many were infants left orphans by the disaster, some of three or four months old.

After the fighting was all over, the Cretan Musselmans, with lighted tapers, went among the dead to see if any Christians still breathed, and all who showed any signs of life were dispatched without mercy

A few Greeks held the stone mill of the monastery with such obstinacy that the Turks were obliged to batter it down on them, destroying everything in it.

The losses of the troops are enormous, the city of Retimo is filled with the wounded, and the hospitals have received over 400, of whom most will die, the surgeons say, having been injured by the explosion Not less than 3,000, and some say 4,000, of the Musselmans have been killed or badly wounded in the affair, and an unwonted gloom is on the faces of their compatriots here—no exultation of victory can be seen, and they say Mustapha Pasha raved like a wounded lion when the battle was over—no one dared approach him His brother in law, Suleyman, his favorite, was mortally wounded, and many officers killed or wounded Thirty six hours the army was engaged in bringing in the wounded, and it is said the ground around the convent is strewn with the Turkish dead.

The Cretans take a grim satisfaction in the result. The garrison of Arkadi only suffered what most of them are willing to suffer when it comes to the worst The religious hostility is such that any other solution than this becomes improbable, and the Christianity of Europe is so like its Mohammedanism that there seems little chance of their falling out over a few miserable Cretans who could not bide the time of England and France to have their three century wrongs righted —Correspondence of the New York Tribune

DUEL BETWEEN A MAN AND A WOMAN —The San Antonio (Texas) Ledger has the following

We heard of a duel yesterday, which came off several days since, between a lady and gent, which indeed, is worthy of note The facts are as follows The gentleman some time since made the lady a present of a handsome pistol, by which she might learn to shoot, and, having become quite expert in the art she thought she could excel him in shooting, and so they had it 'up and down,' one word bringing on another, until the excitement grew so great that she challenged him to try his skill in a shot at one another He of course accepted, pistols were procured and loaded the ground stepped off and the word fire given—the gent fell The lady supposing she had killed him rushed frantically to the spot where he had fell upon him with shrieks of agony, and raising him gently, pressed him fondly to her bosom While moaning over the loss of the 'once fond lover' he suddenly and once more stood erect on terra firma The lady overcome with joy, fainted in the arms of her lover, and he fondly embracing and kissing her, she soon revived And oh! what joy was there witnessed—a scene rarely ever met with The lady was not aware that the pistols contained no balls, the gent being posted and acted accordingly He seeing the fond attachment she had for him, made this remark 'Yours till death, and after death yours for ever' Here report has it that the aforesaid couple are to be married soon Long may they live and happy may they be

HAS located in Portland, in CARTER'S NEW BUILDING, for the permanent cure of all private diseases such as syphilis gonorrhea gleet, strictures &c. He also calls the attention of those suffering with

to call at his office and be at once restored Surgical operations SKILLFULLY performed on the EYES for film, cataract, strabismus or cross eyes

Below are some of the many testimonials

This is to certify that I, John B Jodwan, was blind for over nine years, and I tried all means of a cure, and many doctors, and all of no effect, and I spent all the means I had Finally I had to become a county charge, and when I was taken to Dr G W Brown and stated my case to him and misfortune, he at once commenced to treat my eyes, and now I am well, and commend all those that are suffering with diseases of the eyes to call on Dr G W Brown The reason why I do this is to let suffering humanity know where they can be cured

This is to certify that my daughter was almost blind for over seven years, and was doctored by other physicians without obtaining any relief, when finally I took her to Dr G W Brown who examined her case and at once began to give her treatment and her sight has been entirely restored I do this to let those who are suffering with diseases of the eyes know where they can obtain a cure It has been three years since her eyes were cured, and they are yet sound

SALEM, July 2 1866

This is to certify that I was blind for over four months and almost blind for one year and a half I tried several eye doctors but received no benefit I had almost given my case up as hopeless when fortunately I heard of Dr G W Brown now of Salem I was induced to try him, he performed a surgical operation on my eyes and gave me treatment I soon began to recover and in a short time I was perfectly cured I do this in justice to one who rescued me from a fate worse than death and also for the benefit of those who are laboring under similar afflictions that they may know where they can get relief It is now about eight months since my eyes were cured and they still remain good I can see to read the finest print without difficulty and my eyes can bear the strongest light without pain

L. JAY S. TURNEY,

HAVING LEASED THE ABOVE NAMED HOTEL, is prepared to accommodate the traveling public, and ONE HUNDRED REGULAR BOARDERS, in as good style as any House on the Coast He has determined to make the "Bennett" as good as the best and better than any public house in Salem. He will soon complete some important improvements which will add greatly to its appearance and comfort and intends to merit and hopes to receive his share of patronage

He has secured the services of "Charley" (known to be the best cook in Salem and one of the best in the whole country) and other competent persons to manage the culinary department, and is resolved to set as good a table as can be found anywhere—not in clap-trap, pomp and show, flummery and fine furniture, but in an abundant supply of the very best the market affords.

His Bar-room will be kept warmed and lighted, and well supplied with newspapers, periodicals and other suitable reading matter, and kept in a manner which will make it an agreeable resort

In short, he intends making an effort to please ALL who stop at the BENNETT HOUSE And he most respectfully requests his friends everywhere to give the old and well known stand at least one more trial before concluding they can do as well elsewhere and promises if they are not well treated, and properly cared for and at reasonable figures, it will not be the fault of the public's most obedient and most humble servant,
